Paper 1

General comments

The overall performance of candidates was similar to previous years. There has been a clear improvement on the quality of answers. Some of the questions enabled excellent candidates to shine through with some very competent answers. Questions 5, 9 and 11 fall into that category.

There is the need for candidates to take time to read the questions properly, some candidates seem to latch onto particular key words. Even though focussing on key words or particular 'registers' is very important, candidates have to read the whole of the question so that they can get a comprehensive idea about what is being asked rather than what the question might be asking.

There has been further improvement in using references from the Qur'an and Hadith to support discussions especially in questions where they are specifically required for examples. These are the primary sources for Islamic thought and values and hence such references are crucial to the quality of the answers.

Candidates should ensure that answers are not too short and simplistic, comments need to be meaningful. Candidates should consider the importance of concluding their discussions properly. This is especially important in questions where candidates are asked to take a position and offer reasons for that position. Candidates must also weigh up how much of the background is needed.

Comments on specific questions

Question 1

- (a) Explain the significance of the Ka'ba in pre-Islamic Arabian beliefs.
(b) Why, according to traditional Muslim accounts, did the Prophet Muhammad seek to 'cleanse' the Ka'ba?

This question was very popular and many candidates answered well. Part (a) of the question focuses on the relevance of the Ka'ba in pre-Islamic beliefs and hence the candidates were expected to dwell mainly on this not the general behaviour of the pre-Islamic Arabs. The best answers did specifically refer to the Ka'ba demonstrating its importance to the people of Mecca at the time.

Part (b) expected candidates to make reference to the historical importance of the building and its place in Islam, leading to the need for its cleansing due to the way the Meccans had used it. The best answers made reference to the revelation that came to support the cleansing as seen in Surah 17:81.

Question 2

- (a) Write brief accounts of the following:
(i) the Prophet Muhammad's first experience of revelation
(ii) the first migration to Abyssinia
(iii) the Charter of Medina.
(b) Explain the significance of any two of these for Muslim reflection about relations with other faiths.

In part (a)(i), candidates wrote about the Prophet's experience in the cave of Hira mentioning his surprise and then linking that with the fact that revelations were not stage-managed and that everything was in the hands of God.

In part (a)(ii) many candidates answered very well and provided some interesting details even though the question was only looking for 'brief accounts'.

In part (a)(iii) it was important not to confuse the Charter with the Hudaibiyya Treaty and many candidates provided some very interesting insights.

The answer to part (b) depended upon the way part (a) was answered and this was reflected in the scripts. The two themes chosen should have been correctly identified so that candidates could give explanations of the significance. For all the three themes, there are definite points of relevance for Islam and other religious communities (for example, after the first experience in the Cave, the Prophet sought advice from Wara'ah Ibn Naufal, a Christian and al-Najashi, a Christian, had a role during the migration to Abyssinia).

Question 3

Explain why the Caliph 'Ali was compelled to fight against

(a) Talha and Zubayr

(b) Mu'awiya.

This question was relatively popular and many candidates did well. In each section, candidates were expected to cite specific reasons why the conflicts with 'Ali occurred. In both cases the main issue was on the challenging problem of 'Uthman's assassination and many made some very interesting comments. Candidates needed to use arguments to support their points.

In part (a), the point that the conflict brought to the fore the rivalries and disagreements in the first community was very important. Again, candidates needed to see the conflict as pointing to the fact that no matter how committed and pious the early Muslims were, they were 'normal' human beings whose judgement was sometimes mistaken.

In part (b), the possibility of the self-interest of the various parties involved in the conflict needed to be raised for high marks. However, the effect on the core principles of the faith were either nil or very minimal.

Question 4

(a) Describe the part played by Zayd ibn Thabit in the process of compiling the Qur'an.

(b) Explain the differences between the revelations delivered in Mecca and Medina.

Part (a) of this question was very popular even though part (b) proved to be a challenge. It was important to show evidence of good background understanding as to the historical development of the Qur'an.

For part (a) most candidates wrote extensively. For higher marks the question of the consequences if Zayd had not been methodical in his work needed to be addressed.

In part (b) focus on the structure and themes of the passages was needed. Specific references to the text of the Qur'an were needed for the highest marks. Some candidates pointed out the fact that there could be passages revealed in Mecca in the later period of the revelation but classified as Medinan, therefore, it is better to describe the Meccan and Medinan revelations as pre-Hijrah and post-Hijrah respectively.

Some candidates read the question as meaning the way revelations were received in Medina as compared to Mecca. They focused on the status of the Prophet in Mecca and Medina often adding that while in the former, he was scared, afraid and worked in secret, in the latter, he was bold, open and free to speak.

Question 5

How do the experiences of the prophet Moses as they are recounted in Surat al-qasas (ch 28 of the Qur'an) relate to the experiences of the Prophet Muhammad?

This question needed a close familiarity with the relevant surah (Surah 28). Good detail led to the comparison. That is perhaps why the question was not popular. The question demands reference to the biographical details of the two prophets, their religious experiences, the way they settled among peoples outside their native homes, the revelations they received and the protection God gave them.

Question 6

Why do many Muslims attach as much importance to memorising the Qur'an as to studying its meaning?

Most of the candidates who attempted this question did very well providing some interesting details. Candidates needed to explain the central place of the meaning of the Qur'an in the lives of Muslims. However, memorization is also significant for every Muslim since parts of it are needed in daily prayers and rituals. Some candidates add that even for those who do not understand the meaning, the attempt to memorize a few surahs for their own use was important. In this case, the Qur'an becomes 'personalised' as if God is speaking to the individual Muslim and then the Qur'an is not alien to them. There are also traditional teachings about the rewards one receives when one memorizes the Qur'an.

Question 7

In what ways do the observances of prayer (salat), almsgiving (zakat) and fasting (sawm) strengthen ties within the Muslim community?

This was a very popular question and those who attempted it did well. Many candidates provided excellent details.

Some candidates were able to describe how these rituals enable Muslims to see themselves as one and in solidarity with each other. The format of salat the way people stand, the meaning and significance of zakat and how it shows a form of 'redistribution of financial resources' to help the poor and the needy in society were some of the points made. With fasting (sawm), there is evidence of unity and solidarity in the way everyone, both rich and poor keep the fast, the behaviour during Tarawih, I'tikaf and the payment of Zakat al-Fitr confirm the thrust of the question. The candidates were expected to point out the 'perception' on both sides of the argument.

Question 8

How do the various ceremonies carried out each year in the Islamic world remind Muslims of the life and example of the prophet Abraham?

This question was attempted by many candidates looking from various perspectives. The question demands focus on the annual Hajj and the Id al-Adha ceremony. This was not a question about the celebration of Id al-Fitr and Id al-Adha, to gain high marks there had to be proper links with Abraham.

The question does not ask for the biography of Abraham. Mention should be made of the historical link between Abraham and his son Ismail and the Ka'ba. The ritual of running between Safa and Marwa and the link to Hagar, the Maqam al-Ibrahim, the Zamzam and the 'stoning of Satan' could all have been mentioned. The Id al-Adha (and the link with the story of the attempted sacrifice of Ismail) completes the picture.

Question 9

In the Qur'an the Prophet Muhammad is given the title 'seal of the prophets'. Explain the meaning and the significance of this title.

A good answer depended upon a proper understanding of the title 'seal of the prophets'. Answers needed to make comments on God's communication with humankind from the beginning of history, the corruption of the messages by earlier people and how the Prophet Muhammad came to provide the ultimate message which then becomes the final.

An explanation of the nature of a seal was needed for high marks. Further, even though the expression itself is taken from Surat al-Ahzab (33:40), other passages like those found in 33:21 and 21:107 would have improved answers.

Question 10

In what main ways have Muslim legal experts made use of the Prophet Muhammad's Sunnah in order to interpret the Qur'an?

This question was also popular and many of the candidates who attempted it did well. Many candidates defined Sunnah and explained its relationship to the Qur'an. They then went on to give examples from the general day to day life of a Muslim. Excellent answers were expected to explain how the Sunnah came to be recognised as a source of authority in addition to the Qur'an. Such answers would include Qur'anic references on the status of the Prophet as an Exemplar (33:21), a Guiding Lamp (33:45-46) and the One to explain the Qur'an (3:164).

Question 11

Why was it thought necessary to make use of consensus (ijma') and analogy (qiyas) by early Muslim legal experts?

This question was not very popular. The question is not asking for a descriptive answer but an explanatory one. This will include first, identification of the two sources, their role in the legal structures of Islam and the reasons why their usage was considered necessary.

The best answers explained that their usage shows the universality and flexibility of Islamic Law. Specific examples of situations in which the two are employed then completed the discussion.

Question 12

In a rapidly changing world, can the Qur'an continue to form the basis of belief and action in the Muslim community?

Many candidates attempted this question. Candidates are always encouraged to consider the wider implication of such questions. Hence, this question calls for a discussion on the relevance of the Qur'an in contemporary times. The question is not about how the Qur'an could be made relevant to changing circumstances and hence practical examples in the use of qiyas and ijma' are of little or no significance here.

Better answers could include references to the attitudes of particular movements or groups within Muslim societies and point out the inherent problems in these societies, within the contemporary world, where Muslims have to practice their faith within communities that might not be Islamic.
